

1-day Executive Education Seminar
High Impact Leadership for Women

Instructor: Diana Bilimoria

Women rising from management to leadership need a new set of skills, insights and philosophies. This program is designed to assist women in enhancing their leadership impact and contributions, forging new inroads and dispelling stereotypes. Specifically, the seminar and course materials are designed to provide an enhanced understanding of what it means to lead with high impact. In this highly interactive program, participants will identify the strategies and develop the real-world skills needed to lead effectively. In addition, specific tools and approaches will be provided to help women build work environments where leadership and empowerment are emphasized.

Topics

- Defining high impact leadership
- Understanding the power and responsibility embedded in the role of the leader
- Understanding how one is perceived as a leader
- The unique and complex expectations of and skill requirements for women leaders
- Building a work environment that grows leaders
- Ethical dimensions of leadership

Benefits

- As a result of attending this program, participants will:
- Gain insights about the effective leadership of organizations
- Understand the unique and complex skills required of women leaders
- Identify specific strategies to enhance their leadership impact and contributions

LEVEL OF PRIOR KNOWLEDGE ON THE SUBJECT: None

Who Should Attend: Women in or aspiring to management and leadership positions.